SHORT-LISTED FOR E_LEARNING COMPANY OF THE YEAR

We were delighted to receive the news that our entry in the category of E-learning Development Company of the year had been shortlisted in this year's E-Learning Awards. The e-learning awards are the most prestigious ones for our 'industry' and the Awards Ceremony and Dinner will be held on Thursday 11 November 2010 at the London Marriott Hotel Grosvenor Square in central London.

The basis of our submission was that all the evidence of exceptional results and strong customer service that we were able to supply to the judges has been delivered not by a large e-learning company employing scores of people but by a small company employing six people only four of whom are based in the UK.

Furthermore it is not a small company with one product that is liked by all customers; it is in fact a small company that engages with e-learning in a wide range of vocational areas and contexts.

If you are a trainee accountant in Scotland completing an electronic workbook to confirm your competence at work;

if you are a member of the Business Continuity Institute wanting to progress up the grades in your professional body;

if you are a Radiographer required to produce a record of your Continuous Professional Development because you have been selected by the Health Professions Council as part of the audit of that profession;

if you are a Health manager in Yorkshire searching for a mentor to support your development;

if you are a young person entering some artwork on-line for a national competition;

if you are an Optometrists wanting to create a record of your professional practice or if you are in the army and working towards a qualification in warehousing or drivers goods vehicle; then you may not know it but you will be using a system developed and designed by the this company.

This short-listing is further confirmation of the quality of the work we produce and we would like to thank all our customers who supplied the information we were able to include in our submission.
